UHV-Assignment 2

Aim : To understand prosperity vs accumulation by discussion on –"What is meant by prosperity? How can it be ascertained? Does accumulation ensure prosperity?"

1. What is meant by prosperity and accumulation?
   → Humans have always wanted happiness and prosperity.
   Prosperity is success or the state of success, especially financial or material success.
   Prosperity often implies success in terms of wealth, health, and happiness.
   We need physical things to complete the needs of the body and when these needs are fulfilled, we feel prosperous. Prosperity is a feeling of having more than required or having something abundance.
   Whereas the gathering of much more physical facilities and wealth than required is called accumulation. Prosperity is the feeling of having accumulated enough.However, accumulation does not directly lead to prosperity.
   Thus accumulation without right understanding will lead to constant feeling of deprivation with no feeling of prosperity

2. Why is it important?
   →Even if we have everything in abundance , we won't be satisfied with materialistic things because we don't have the right understanding about prosperity and happiness.

We should self-explore to get the right understanding about the things we want and then we will be able to differentiate between prosperity and accumulation.

3.How to achieve it?

→The key to attracting more prosperity into your life is believing that you are worthy of happiness. Self-worth is extremely important because you must accept yourself as who you are in order to be truly happy. By believing that you are worthy of happiness, you will radiate a positive energy into the universe that will reciprocate with wealth and prosperity.

It is important to achieve this right understanding. This can be done by stopping comparing yourself with others.

One should focus on what you have right now and use the right understanding to train yourself to think positively.
